The Eccentric Flight of the Woodcook

Makes Him Almost Impossible to Hit. The poculiar habit of the woodcock and his corkscrew flight make him probably the most difficult of winged marks. In the daytime he remains alwars in thickets, copses or cane-brakes. He must have ground upon which to sleep and and in waich to do his occasional daylight boring, and moist ground generally means always dense indergrowth, Indeed, some of the places most favored by the woodcock are so thickly overgrown that a rabbit Ands difficulty in getting through. In such places the hunter send in his cocker spaniel, if he has one, knowing that the dog will flush the bird with his shrill, constant barking, and trusting to luck to get a shot as the woodcock clears the tops of the trees or canes. Generally, however, a man and a pointer may work their way through almost anything that grows in shape of woods and entangling vines, and it must be admitted that the difficulties of it lend to the sport a peculiar fascination that does not pertain to any other form of American shooting. It is characteristic of the woodcock that he will not fly far horizontally when disturbed. He does not see well, even in the shadow of the caks and cypresses, and he fears that if he lets himself out in a straight line he will run into something. At night he sees as well as an owl, Ilis flight, consequently, when he rises before the heavy trend of the nointer's owner, or before the yelp of the spaniel, is confined to a spiral shoot straight upward and a drop to earth almost as perpendicular. If not struck he will hit the ground probably not more than fifteen yeards from where he left it. In cane or other kinds of swamp he might as well be a hundred yards away, so far as any chance of shooting him is concerned. The flight is nothing like so

For registering the results of a foot race the human eye and voice seem sometimes painfully inadequate. Close contests of this kind will doubtless end more pleasantly when the new 'judging machine," described by the Golden Penny, comes into general case. The machine, which was invented by an Australian, is designed to be placed at the finish line, and consists of a light metal frame partitioned into two or more divisions, each about four feet wide. On the top of the frame stands a small cabinet containing numbered divisions corresponding to the numbern of the tracks. The instant the first man passes through his division a shutter falls, disclosing his track number. The other numbers are immediately locked, except when the machine is set for final heats. In this case a small cylinder is attached to Has to say who has had 35 YEARS of active Practice of Medicine:

I have never before in my 35 years of practice of medicine given my testimonial of recommendation to any patent medicine, but there is a remedy, the result of which has come under my own observation; for there is no Disease which has so buffled the medical skill of all oges as Rhesemation and to find a Reliable results, for the asime. At last we have found it in "g Drops," manufactured by the Swanson Rheumatic Gure Company, Chicago, Ili. The "g DROPS," has proven itself wonderful for its constitue power in Rheumatism, not as a Femporary Reliever only, but to give a Permanent Cure even in chronic cases, housetine ago, I had among others several Rheumatic cases under my treatment and prescribed for these posterists the very best Remedies which I skillfully selected, but without destrable results. I then beard of "g DROPs" and its Wonderful Cures, and prescribed it to a few patients who found relief from its use within a few days. After that in the course of Two or Three Weeks after they had best "g DROPs" and "g Drop" Plasters they were Cured, Among three were a few who had, for a number of the weeks after they had best "g DROPs" and the "g DROPs" and it is bright testimony to the Swanson them such a few with the cracility of the Curaciles among suffering humanity which they and to "g DROPs" and the "g Drop" Plasters and this is their testimony to the Swanson them such as the company for their kindpess and or the connectations are within the course of two will not the Curacile Gare Company for their kindpess and or the connectations are within the property of the connectations are all the cracil to "g DROPs" and "g Drop" Plasters, in a great many instances, I can Truly recommend them and also that the firm is perfectly honest and reliable to deat with.

Thus the exact positions of all the competiturs can be told to a nicety. The same inventor has originated an automatic judging machine for bleyele rares. It consists of fine, light metal strips placel in a small trench about two inches wide. which is sunk across the track at the finish. During the last lap these strips. which are coated with enamel, are placed in position by means of a lever and the first wheel to cross receives five marks. In crossing, however, it displaces one of the strips, and the next wheel, therefore, only receives four marks, the third three, and so on.

Small Coin in Great Demand. There has been no relaxation of the demand for fractional silver, and the situation, according to treasury officials, is likely to get worse rather than better. All the uncurrent and defaced coins have now been coined up. and the treasury is at the end of its resources. When Secretary Gage took bold in March, 1897, he had $16,000,-600 in subsidiary coin. That sum has steadily declined, until now there is less than $3,000,000 in the possession of the treasury, and this is scattered over the country. The demand for small coins continues from all sections, and there has been found no authority of law to purchase bullion to supply the demand. The secretary last year suggested to congress that he begiven authority to use the seigniorage for subsidiary coluage, but the only, response was to direct the coinage of att this seigniorage into silver dollars. There will be a scarcity of small change until congress acts.

Her Real Charm.

A Scotch farmer, says London Answers, who was a bachelor and a little past his prime, finding his comforts in life rather meager on account of his indigent circumstances, decided that the best thing he could do was to marry a certain middle-aged neighbor of his who did not lack for money. He went, wooed and won, and his estate zoon took on an air of greater prosperity. One of the first purchases he made with his wife's money was a When he brought it home he called his wife out to see it. After admiring the animal she said: "Well, Sundy, if it hadna been for my siller it wadna bae been here." "Jenny," replied Sandy, "if it hadna been for yer sitler, ye wadna hao been here yer-

The Text Struck Home. This happened to the wife of a wellknown merchant, who is rather con spicuous for his devotion to the church. His spouse, dressing one recent Sunday morning, got into a shirt-waist that more than put Iteuben's coat in the shade. She was conscious of the color scheme, but decided to ask husband's opinion before wearing the garment to church. They agreedmen-that she was delightfully dressed, and that the waist could hardly Improved upon. church, the wife with secret misgiv-ings, which, as the case turned out were well enough founded, for they were no sooner seated in Grace Episco-pal church than the Rev. She Must Have Been a Hoosier. An Indiana girl laughed five hours over a joke and without a single in-termission. It required the services of two physicians to bring about a state of sobriety, and it is said to have been a very poor joke at that.

I often wished for death, thinking nothing would cure me. I had doctors, but their medicines did me no good. At last, by the advice of a friend, I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. and I am happy to say it has entirely curad me.

JENNIE SHERMAN, of Fremont, Mich., Box 748, writes

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:-I feel that I must write you and tell you what your medicine has b done for me. I had neuralgia of the stomach for two years, so bad that I could not do any work. I had two or three doctors, but did not seem to get any better. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills and improved from the first, had better appetite, and after taking three bottles of Compound and one box of Liver Pills, can say that I am cured. Your Vegetable Compound is a wonderful medicine.'
